2. THIRD COUNTRY CITIZEN EMPLOYED IN FOREIGN COMPANY

2.1 Third-country citizens with the right to work in Sweden for a limited time:

Foreign companies domiciled in an EU / EEA country other than Sweden may register ID06- cards to third-country citizen who have EU residence permit cards that are issued with Residence Permit (residence permit). However, it must be issued with at least one year of validity and also stated with the right to work or other text with the same meaning, English or in the country's own language on the front or back. (Exception is an EU permanent residence permit card that does not need to be specified with the right to work)

With the EU residence permit card, the posted third-country citizen has the right to staying in Sweden for work for 3 months over a 6-month period.

Documentation attached digitally with the card order:

- Photo on the third country citizen's EU Residence Permit card front and back indicated by Residence Permit and Work Permit and issued with at least one year of validity. It must be a clear photograph on the front and back of the EU residence permit card, photocopy will not be accepted. (Exception is an EU permanent residence permit card that does not need to be specified with the right to work)
- Copy of A1 certificate or confirmation of application of A1 certificate is a requirement.

ID06 cards can be issued with a validity period:

- ID06-card can be issued with a maximum validity period of three months over a 6-month period
- But with a Swedish residence permit issued by Migration Agency in Sweden, the ID06 card can be issued for the time the Swedish residence permit is valid for, but no longer than the A1 certificate or application for an A1 certificate is issued to
- A receipt or document from the Swedish Migration Agency stating that the application for a Swedish residence permit has been served on them is also accepted instead of the actual residence permit. And an ID06 card can be issued for 3 months from the date of receipt stated on the Swedish Migration Agency receipt / document on application for residence permit. But after the 3-month period, a new ID06 card cannot be issued, it must then be the actual approved residence permit that is attached to the ID06 card order.
- Exceptions are allowed if there is a letter issued by the Swedish Migration Agency stating that a decision has not yet been made regarding the third-country national's application for a residence permit.

Conditions for EU residence and work permit cards:

ID06 does not accept documents other than the EU residence permit card stated with the right to work with validity of at least one year for verification of third-country citizen residence in the EU country from which they are posted. It is then that national legislation that applies to the right of third-country nationals to work in another EU country and Swedish legislation requires that the third-country citizen be resident in the EU country from which they are posted.

A third-country citizen with the right to work in an EU country for a short, limited time is by definition not resident in that EU country. Accordingly, ID06 will not accept documents that are in violation of Swedish legislation, as a stay for short-term employment in another EU / EEA country, nor will VISA D be accepted. None of those documents give the right to third-country citizen to be posted from another EU / EEA country for work in Sweden.

Foreign citizen employed by foreign companies are required to have an A1 certificate or a confirmation of the application for A1 issued by an authority in the home country. If a confirmation of the application is attached instead of the A1 certificate, then when ordering an ID06 card, the A1 certificate must be supplemented by the customer within 3 months.

The A1 certificate must state the same company as the ordering company of the ID06 card

EU rules do not allow companies to post persons other than their own employees who are then socially insured in the same country in which the company is domiciled. The company name and domicile / registered office in the same country as the employee is socially insured in must then be stated on the A1 certificate (and notification of the A1 certificate)
